

Information Architecture

As mentioned before, the point of entry is the home page. From there, users can navigation to different pages by using the navigation bar. The information architecture of the site can be represented by the following site map.

